Re: #02-278 Protect Indiana's Strong Do Not Call List

Date: July 29, 2005

Dear FCC,

I feel very strongly that you should not mess with Indiana's highly popular DO NOT CALL list.

What a difference this Indiana law has made. Now, when the phone rings, it is almost certainly someone I'm glad to hear from.

Occasionally, when a telemarketer or "opinion research" firm calls, a quick review with them that I am serious about not being called and will turn them in for a fine if they call again has so far worked very well. This is some of the best legislation in years! Don't you dare try to override it at the federal level. We Hoosier's would be hopping mad!

Can you please do something to help us with email spam? Why can't all "misconfigured sender" email messages be blocked from the internet? I thought Congress already made them illegal, since the sender's address can no longer legally be masked.

Thank you for receiving my petition,
